Finnish kraut-punk guitar hurricane Teksti-TV 666 set to release EP compilation

Is there such a thing as too many guitarists in a band? Finland's Teksti-TV 666 think not. Formed three years ago, things have escalated rather quickly for the seven-headed shoegazing kraut-punk monster. Armed with no less than five electric guitars, Teksti-TV 666 are nowadays one of the most in-demand live acts in their native Finland, and select performances abroad have caused a bit of a storm as well.

Teksti-TV 666 is a band built on contradictions; it is as if Neu! performed Ramones songs, it is a shoe gazing Hellacopters, it is a heavy but soft wall of noise, a colorful slow motion explosion. With over 100 shows played in three years and three EPs behind them, the band's reputation is rapidly on the rise.

In November 2016 Svart Records present a CD/double vinyl compilation of the band's three EPs.

The records, titled 1, 2 and 3, have all quickly sold out, the last one on pre-orders only. This compilation is the first time these precious recordings are widely available outside Finland.

After autumn 2016's Finnish tour with Kvelertak the band will set their sights on Europe, beginning with a tour in Norway.
